CHINA WIRELESS TECHNOLOGIES WINS CONTRACT TO SUPPLY 60,000 “COOLPAD 728B” DUAL-MODE SMARTPHONES TO CHINA UNICOM

(Hong Kong, 13 September 2006) – China Wireless Technologies Limited (“China Wireless Technologies” or the “Company”) (stock code: 2369), China’s leading provider of integrated wireless data solutions and smartphones, announced that it has won a contract to supply 60,000 “Coolpad 728B” dual-mode smartphones to China Unicom. The order, which is worth RMB288 million, will be delivered in phases in the forth quarter of 2006 and the first quarter of 2007. This is the Group’s another major smartphone supply contract with China Unicom, following the previous contract to supply 150,000 “Coolpad 728” dual-mode smartphones to China Unicom last year.

The “Coolpad 728B” dual-mode smartphone is the advanced version of the “Coolpad 728” dual-mode smartphone, with the additional functions such as blue-tooth and name card scanning to satisfy the needs of the senior business executives. The Company’s proprietary “Coolpad 728” dual-mode smartphone is the world’s first dual-mode smartphone, which can allow 2 SIM cards to operate simultaneously, saving users from having to switch SIM cards for different numbers or carrying two mobile phones at the same time.

Possessing all the functions of “Coolpad 728”, the “Coolpad 728B” can support PDA functions in business uses, and enables browsing of Windows Office format documents, sending and receiving of emails, as well as wireless communications, such as Internet Explorer wireless Internet access, MSN and QQ, etc. Users can also receive stock market news, play music, video and access different real-time TV channels of MP3, MP4 and 3GP formats. With the newly added bluetooth function, the “Coolpad 728B” can support and facilitate long distance data transmission. Meanwhile, the name card scanning function can enable the business executives to store the details of their business contacts quickly and easily.

Mr. Guo Deying, Chairman of China Wireless Technologies, said, “China Wireless Technologies has landed another smartphone supply contract with China Unicom. This indicates that there is a great demand from the telecom operators for the Group’s proprietary dual-mode smartphones. In the future, the Company will continue to develop more innovative products to diversify its products in order to match the needs of different telecom operators and meet the requirements of different networks, and thus widen its customer base.”

In addition to this contract to supply “Coolpad 728B” smartphones, the Company is also negotiating a contract to supply another middle market dual-mode product to China Unicom. In the second half of 2006, the Company will reinforce its market position by developing more innovative products. It has planned to introduce five to six new models of smartphone in the second half of 2006. The new products will include two CDMA-GSM dual-mode models, two CDMA models to suit China Unicom’s network and one PHS-GSM dual-mode model tailored for the networks of China Telecom and China Netcom. Meanwhile, the Company’s self-developed TDSCDMA-GSM dual-mode is currently undergoing tests in anticipation of the issue of 3G licences by the Chinese government. The Company will be able to launch the new 3G product promptly once the licences are issued.
