The Golden Hong Kong Stock Awards, one of the most professional and authoritative listed company selections in China, was co-organized by ZhiTongCaiJing, a leading Hong Kong and US stocks information platform, and RoyalFlush Finance. The judges at this year’s Golden

Hong Kong Stock Awards consisted of economists, renowned brokerages, and experienced investors. The finalists were evaluated and judged based on contestants’ revenue growth, industry ranking, corporate governance, business model, market influence, capital market performance, and other factors during the past year, combined with public votes. The “Best SaaS Company” Award aims to commend Hong Kong listed companies with consistent outstanding performance and rapid growth in the SaaS service field, high growth potential, and broad appeal in the capital markets. The award reflects the market’s recognition of the Group’s active efforts in SaaS services, as well as opening up both online and offline channels, and empowering small and micro enterprises with digital transformation strategies.

The Group commented, “Winning the ‘Best SaaS Company’ award at Golden Hong Kong Stock Awards demonstrates the recognition from the industry and investors of Hi Sun Technology with its strong performance and potential in fintech development, which is also a great encouragement to the Group. Looking back at the past 2020, under the negatively impacted environment by COVID-19, Hi Sun Technology has fully leveraged its advantages in stable business operations and technical advantages to help solve the operational difficulties of small and micro enterprises, as well as improve their operational efficiencies. In the future, Hi Sun Technology will continue to keep up with market trends, and seize new opportunities, focusing on innovation of technologies and products that will enable us to provide high-quality, compliant, efficient, and diversified fintech services to a wider customer base, and to reward our shareholders and the market with better performance.”
