Market risk control of the Bank is mainly exercised via risk limit management from various perspectives such as exposure, risk level, and profit/loss.
- 2. Liquidity risk. Liquidity risk of derivatives refers to the risk of a Bank when it has solvency but cannot obtain sufficient fund in a timely manner or cannot obtain sufficient fund in time with reasonable cost to deal with asset growth or serve due debts. For derivatives delivered in full amount, the Bank adopted the measure of square positioning to ensure sufficient fund for settlement and clearing; for derivatives delivered in net amount, there was no significant impact as the cash flow would have minor impact on current assets of the Bank.
- 3. Operational risk. Operational risk is the risk resulting from deficient and defective internal procedure, staff, system, or external events, including the risks caused by staff, process, system and external factors. The Bank strictly observed the requirements of CBRC's Guidance on Operational risk Management of Commercial Banks, deployed designed traders, adopted professional front-middle-back office integrated monitoring system, set complete business operational process and authorization management system and complete and sound internal monitoring and auditing mechanism to avoid operational risk to the largest extent.
- 4. Legal risk. Legal risk refers to the possibility of risk exposure caused by the non-compliance of business activity with legal requirements or external legal

Risk analysis on derivatives position-holding during the reporting period and explanations on controlling measures (including but not limited to market risk, liquidity risk, credit risk, operational risk and legal risk) matters. The Bank attached great importance to legal documentation related to derivative transactions, and signed legal agreements including ISDA, CSA, NAFMII with other Banks to avoid legal disputes and regulate dispute resolving methods. For our customers, the Bank also drafted customer transaction agreement by referring to the above inter-bank legal agreements pursuant to regulatory requirements and transaction management requirements, thus largely avoiding potential legal disputes.

5. Force majeure risk. Force majeure refers to unforeseeable, unavoidable or insurmountable objective circumstances, including but not limited to fire, earthquake, flood or other natural disasters, war, military act, strike, pandemic, failure of IT system or communication or power-supply systems, financial crisis, moratorium of related market, or changes in national laws and regulations or policies such that the derivatives cannot conducted normal trading after the contract becomes effective. The Bank has concluded agreements with all retail, institutional and inter-bank customers and set out terms and conditions about force majeure to disclaim any liability arising from any breach of the contract in case of force majeure.

Changes of market price or product fair value of invested derivatives during the reporting period. The methods adopted in determining the fair value of derivatives as well as the assumptions and parameters should be disclosed together with the analysis result In the first quarter of 2015, changes in the fair value of derivatives invested by the Bank were within control. The Bank adopted evaluation techniques to determine the fair value of financial derivatives. The evaluation technique includes making reference to the prices used by trading parties in voluntary transactions after making reference to familiar circumstances in latest market transactions, and reference to the current fair value and discounted cash flow technique of other financial instruments of substantially the same nature. Market parameters may be used in evaluation techniques whenever possible. However, the management has to make estimations in light of credit risk, market fluctuation rate and relevancy of its own and its trading counterparties when market parameters are unavailable.

Note: Other loans include "Xin Yi Dai", certificate pledged consumption loans, petty consumer loans and other guaranteed or pledged consumption loans.

As of the end of the reporting period, the non-performing rate of retail industry loan (excluding credit card) rose by 0.38 percentage points over the beginning of the year; of which the operational loans, automobile loans and housing mortgage loans registered an increase of non-performing rate of 0.66 percentage points, 0.29 percentage points and 0.06 percentage points respectively: (1) the main reason for the increase of non-performing rate in operational loan rested on the continuous adjustment of stocks structure which caused the holistic slowing growth process; next, under the influence of the downturn of macroeconomics and the continuous exposure of some of regional risks, the NPL amount rose somewhat; however, the holistic risks were under control. (2) the automobile loan registered an increase in non-performing rate because the adjustment of products mix and the increase of the ratio of high yield products coupled with the external economic environment. (3) the non-performing rate of housing mortgage loans rose under the influence of the falling of loan scale; and the cycle for alleviating the non-performing of housing loan was relatively long; however, the risk can be controlled due to the full value of the mortgage.

The non-performing rate of a credit card account receivable rose 0.13 percentage point over the beginning of the year which was mainly restricted by the loan scale limitation and was influenced by the slowing amount growth of the receivables of credit cards; the Bank had implemented measures such as improving the card quality issued to new clients, executing the strategy of a more meticulous credit line, strengthening the earlier control and management of stock clients and improving the efficiency in pressing for payment; hence, the combination risks can be controlled holistically and the yield risks coverage capacity was greatly enhanced.
